Machine Translation Service

Get your content translated in lightning speed

We offer technical expertise to integrate your content management system with off-the-shelf or custom-built machine translation engines. We would discuss your project and offer you the most suitable option. You would get access to our machine translation knowledge and expertise. Most importantly we would offer you independent advice on the best options for your requirement.

What type of content machine translation is suitable for?

In some cases, getting the general meaning of the text can be enough. In those cases, machine translation provides a very viable option. Blog comments, twitter postings and discussions in message boards are also suitable for machine translation.

Machine translation can also be a good option for large volumes of content with a lot repeated content such as product descriptions and frequently asked questions.

What machine translation options are there?

There are many options for machine translation services. It ranges from Google AutoML Translation, Microsoft Translator, Amazon Translate, DeepL, to customisable engines using machine learning and artificial intelligence.

Machine translation with post editing

A professional translator edits the text after it has been machine translated, removing most errors. This is an option which may be worth considering for your project.

Benefits of machine translation

- Fast turnaround times
- Easily handle high volumes of content
- Cost effective
- Can be used in conjunction with translation memories

Website Translation Proxy

Multilingual websites with no IT involvement

Easiest Way to Localise Your Website

There are several approaches to localise your website for your international audience. Website Translation Proxy is a solution with little to no IT involvement. It is generally an easier process compared to full website localisation and you will be well covered with TTC wetranslate's Website Translation Proxy Solution: TTC weconnect.

What is Website Translation Proxy and how does it work?

Website Translation Proxy can be performed without having to export or import files from your website. Proxy is set up to act as a mirror in front of your source website. You manage your own website, and the translations will be visible to different audiences in their own languages. You can choose to have as many languages as you need and you can choose whether you would like a human translation or machine translation with post-editing.

What are the stages?

- Get in Touch

We'll work with you to determine your own individual requirements and create a plan of action to help you meet your goals.

- Determine the Scope

We will work to draw up a quotation, which will include efficient and accurate translations from our skilled team along with a website translation proxy which displays your content in the right language for your visitors.

- Approve the Quote

TTC wetranslate will use TTC weconnect website translation proxy to analyse your website. All you need to do is evaluate and approve the quote.

- Leave it to us

All completed translations are subjected to quality control procedures, ensuring that all content that's delivered to our clients is not only technically correct, but also readable. When happy, you can sign off on the text.

- Go Live with the Website Translation Proxy

When you've signed off on all your content, we'll approve and publish the translations into the website translation proxy. Within 24 hours, the proxy will be live.

And that's all there is to it!

Smart Connectors
Technology that makes communication faster

Whether you're a bit of a geek or a techno-dummy (and happy to be), you can't deny that technology has provided many labour saving solutions for industries. The challenge for any business is knowing what the best solution is for their particular business.

When you're operating in the international marketplace, whatever technology you choose, needs to be accessible for all your clients and employees in their native language. That adds to the challenge.
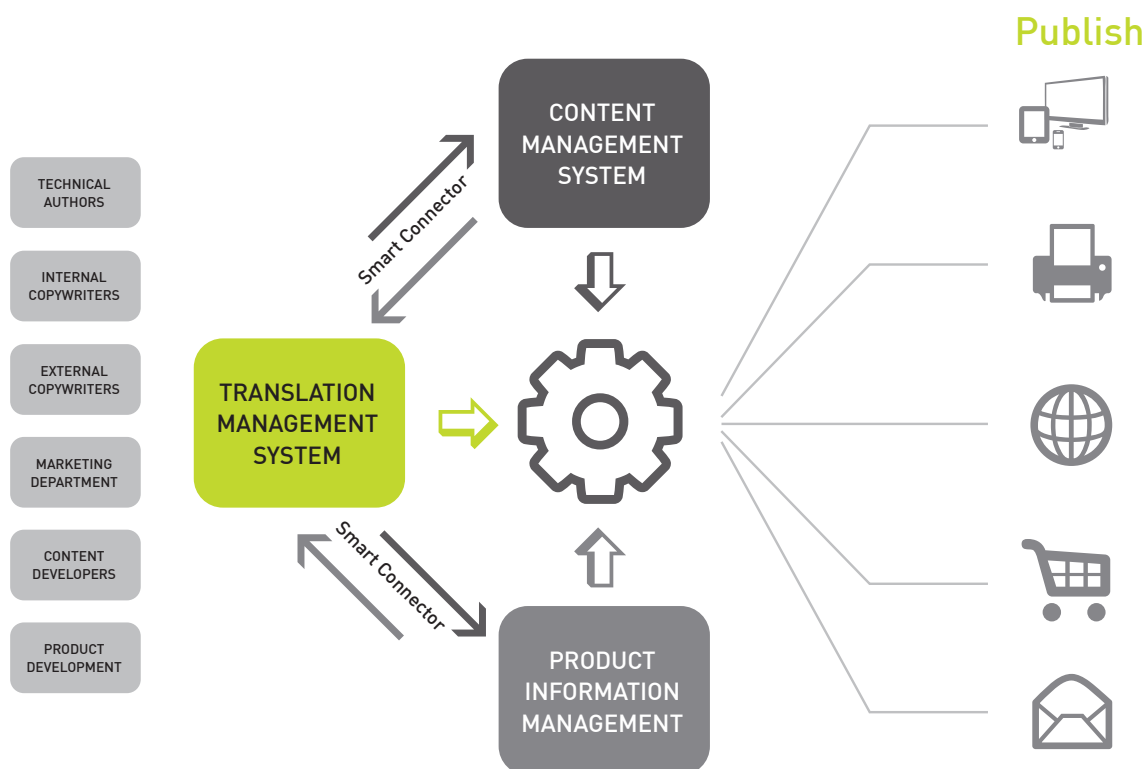

If your website is created in WordPress, Drupal or Kentico – we have some clever toys that will make the translation process much easier. These are called 'connectors' and do pretty much what the name says.

They connect existing content to the translation service so you can get pages and posts translated.

Your original formatting, graphics and layout are retained so that you don't have to reformat everything after translation. Pages can be reviewed before publishing – or retained in draft form. Content can be imported and exported easily. When new updates are needed it is easy to process.

The same pinciples apply to technical authoring solutions such as Paligo or marketing systems Marketo. With these connectors, you can request translations, check the status and download translations as and when you need them.

Technical Authoring Service

User Guides, Online Help with Structured Authoring

Our technical writing services give your company professional looking documents and provides your users with clear information.

User Guides & User Manuals

We can produce Quick Start Guides, Reference Guides as well as User Manuals for software and technology products.

Our writers use fit for purpose tools suitable for your requirement. These range from Microsoft tools, Adobe FrameMaker, Adobe RoboHelp or MadCap Flare as well as Paligo which is a hosted authoring solution.

Online Help

Accurately and properly written online help documentation is a common requirement for growing your software userbase. A good documentation will please your users and will prevent bottlenecks for your support teams. We can use industry standard tools such RoboHelp and Madcap Flare.

Single Source Publishing

This is a content management method which allows the same content to be used across different platforms and media. This means the content creating and editing and review can be done once and used in many platforms.

Also, corrections and future updates in the source need to be done only once. We can produce PDF files, upload to systems such as Zendesk from the same source.

Multilingual Documentation

Whether English or in other languages it is all about keeping your corporate brand consistent and servicing your users in different countries.
We can create the same document for different languages in a cost and time effective way, while making it fit for your users.
